

ABSTRACT

A method for processing echoes in a time-of-flight ranging system or level measurement system. The method comprises a recursive descent parser which is applied to an echo profile to process and identify potential echoes. In another aspect, the method provides for processing the ring down portion of the echo profile.